Online Collaboration
Increase productivity

Email has evolved and is no longer restricted to receiving and sending messages from a single application.

Today

- People want to use their email anywhere, at any time, on any device
- The number of emails increases replacing other means of communication
- The size of mails increases with documents being send around the world over email
- Email is about collaboration, not only about sending messages
- Communication should be unified
- And this all should be realised with minimum costs

Low TCO with your mails in the cloud

Storing your emails locally is a thing of the past. Today, your mailbox is online giving you access to it at any time from any place. Your mobile device can connect to your mailbox just as easily as a browser or desktop client.

Whether Mbox mail replaces your current setup (be it Lotus, Exchange or plain POP mails) or you start from scratch, we work towards offering you the best TCO. We handle all the update, backup and configuration issues for you so that you can focus on collaborating. We also believe that all emails are important and that archiving is a thing of the past. We therefore encourage you to keep all your emails in your mailbox without worrying about quota. To ensure your peace of mind, we offer you unlimited quota and a powerful search tool allowing you to store and retrieve emails quickly and efficiently.

Public and Private Sharing

Collaboration would not be complete without sharing. To give you the full collaboration experience, you also have your calendar, contacts, tasks, files and notes available in the collaboration platform. You can share any of these items with internal as well as external users. This allows for fast and unrestricted information flow between staff members, or with customer, suppliers and other business partners.

Setup and support

As we encourage you to keep your email, it is clear that we don't want you to start from scratch when migrating to our system. We will assist you or handle the migration from your old system to the new one for you, with minimal downtime and inconvenience for the users. Whether it is on-site or off-site, our staff is there to help you achieve a smooth migration. In addition, since the features of your new system are so vast, our support staff will assist you in fine-tuning your setup and configurations to suit your needs.
